FILM & TV

Doncaster has a surprising cinematic pedigree. From the golden age of cinema, when the town boasted over 30 picture houses, to its modern-day role as a regular filming location, the silver screen has always held a special place in Doncaster's heart.

Our city's diverse landscapes, from the industrial grit to the rural charm, have captured the attention of filmmakers worldwide. From the iconic scenes of 'This is England' filmed in Balby, to the grandeur of 'The Darkest Hour', which transformed Brodsworth Hall into wartime London, and the comedic brilliance of 'Open All Hours' showcasing the town's traditional Balby shop fronts, Doncaster has proven its versatility as a cinematic backdrop.

Other notable productions that have captured Doncaster's unique character include the gritty drama 'Brassed Off', which transformed the now-demolished Thorpe Marsh power station into a striking industrial setting, and the more recent 'In The Club', which showcased the city's modern urban landscape.

The airport has also played its part in the cinematic world, featuring in both 'Official Secrets' and the comedy 'Come Fly With Me'.

Adding to its cinematic acclaim, Doncaster is mentioned in the new Sky TV series 'The Day of The Jackal', starring esteemed actor Eddie Redmayne. In the series, Brodsworth Hall & Gardens and Yorkshire Wildlife Park are highlighted as notable locations. Although not filmed here, these iconic landmarks showcase Doncaster's cultural and historical significance.
